

Navigation bar on the left

- Main page
  - o Mainly images like a museum
  - o Scroll horizontally through a grid summary of each of the pages
    - Like show his top 4 books
- First page
  - o About life from Wikipedia
  - o just paragraphs and images
- Second page
  - o Pick some of his famous books
    - Picture of book and then next to it details
  - o Underneath the 4 top books have a grid of some of his other less famous books. Have links attached to them
  - o Joyful and fun
  - o
- third page
  - o movie
    - picture and description
  - o can be joyful and fun but also have a profound mood at some point
    - kinda depends on the screenplay you pick
- fourth page
  - o influences and legacy
    - similar to first page
    - just paragraphs and images

Hey Jake! I think Children's Fiction section and Screenplay section to have similar design as

<https://www.blimp.gr/themovies/>

List of books and screenplays shown first and then when click, move to detailed summaries and infos page those pages you can reference to

<https://www.franshalsmuseum.nl/en/news/province-chooses-frans-hals-museum-and-amsterdam-museum/>

Images and the infos on the sides left and right with "position sticky" yup! And the first and the last sub pages, author's life and the legacy page can also have similar design feature of "left and right" or "up and down" but those two pages should be similar ! :)

<https://www.franshalsmuseum.nl/en/> This website will be a good reference for you the color choices / navigation bar / sub pages!

<https://www.franshalsmuseum.nl/en/>